

FARMERS' COLUMN.

Best Way of Applying Manure.

We need not apologize for recurring so frequently to the subject of manure. Our salvation, in a farming point of view, rests in the manure bank—or, at any rate, our success in the future depends to a very large extent upon the application of fertilizers of some kind to our fields. Unfortunately for our State, as well as the individual farmer, it has been too much neglected heretofore, and to this neglect may be attributed the present depressed condition of agriculture throughout the South of Virginia and the entire South. We have so often urged the importance of making all the manure possible, and protecting it from the weather, that we have not applied to the land, that we will say nothing more of that at the present, but pass directly to the method of applying it to the land. Our own practice, which experience has approved, has been to haul directly from the barn to the field and scatter direct from the carts. Give Them Cold Water.

It is very doubtful if there is a single possible disease in which cold water ad libitum. Oh how babies often suffer for cold water! A nursing baby is given no matter how thirsty, anything but milk. The little lips are dry and cracked and the little tongue so parched that it can scarcely nurse, and yet it has nothing but milk to assuage its craving thirst. Try it yourself, mother, when you have fever, and you are sure that ever after, when your darling is dying with thirst, the teaspoon and tumbler of cold water will be in constant use. Deny it milk and give it plenty of cold water, and it has a chance of a speedy recovery.

The mistress of a house should inspect every apartment daily; see that the whole is swept, dusted, aired, and disinfected of cobwebs. Bed-rooms should be aired daily; beds at least once a fortnight in the sun. Pantries, store-rooms and closets should be cleaned out once a week. Shelves, where china and glass are kept, should be carefully dusted.

How Rich Men Begin Life. Cornelius Vanderbilt began life with an old pigrook, running between Staten Island and New York city, and carrying garden stuff to market. With two or three thousand dollars raised from that source, he entered upon steadily increasing enterprises until he amassed the enormous sum of $50,000,000. Alexander T. Stewart first bought a few faces at auction, and opened his store to success in a dingy little shop in Broadway, near the site of his present establishment.

Daniel Drew, in his early life, was a cattle driver at the magnificent rate of seventy-five cents a day, and he has now driven himself into an estate valued at from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000. George Law, fifty-five years ago, was a common day laborer on the docks, and at present controls his fortune at something like $10,000,000.

Robert L. and Alexander Stewart, the noted sugar refiners, in their boyhood sold candy on the streets, and their widowed mother had made, at a cent a stick, and to-day are worth $5,000,000. Marshall O. Roberts is the possessor of $4,000,000, and yet until he was twenty-five he did not have $100 he could call his own.

Horace B. Clinch, the eminent dry goods merchant, worth it is estimated from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000, commenced the world with nothing but energy, determination and hope; and see how magnificently he has invested them!

Our Former Presidents. Jefferson was calm, clear, critical, cool, comprehensive and orderly. John Adams was emotional in his nature, and was fiery and forcible. James K. Polk was proud, firm, combative, dignified and determined. Andrew Jackson was a man of force of character, but lacked firmness of character, but lacked firmness of character.

Franklin Pierce was very harmonious in his mental organization—well balanced. Abraham Lincoln was firm, hopeful, intelligent, honest, positive and independent. Millard Fillmore was more courteous than commanding, and wins rather than compels.

William Henry Harrison was kind, affectionate, upright, prudent and circumspect. Monroe was more remarkable for practical talent and common sense than for depth and brilliancy. Washington had strong common sense, clear reasoning power, integrity, firmness and self-esteem.

John Tyler was brilliant and off-hand rather than deep and profound. He was firm to the last. Martin Van Buren was cautious, shrewd, clear-headed and reticent, and was highly polished in manners. John Quincy Adams was combative, argumentative and thorough, and had an extraordinary memory.

Gen. Dick Taylor. The New Tribune makes this mention of Mississippi's last Department Confederate commander: "After doing everything in his power to bring about harmony between the Administration and Louisiana, Gen. Richard Taylor has come to the West Indies for a few weeks. The son of a President, General Taylor although co-operating with the movement last autumn for reform, is personally on pleasant terms with the present occupants of the White House, and reports who refer to this brilliant and loyal man as an enemy to the Union, are guilty of rank injustice. When Gen. Taylor laid down his sword and gave up his eight hundred slaves, he accepted the situation without reservation, and to-day there is no better friend of the whole country than the former master General of the Confederate army. General Taylor is as honest as he is brave, and the salvation of the South depends upon such men."

There are some eloquent men in the Indiana Legislature. In a debate in the House, a few days ago, Mr. Heller referred to one of his colleagues in this eloquent manner: "When a man here tells the gentleman from Knox that he will not vote for the bill, he makes right off on his car, like a mad steer through the lot, with his back bowed up, and his tail higher than the tassels."

The next thing we know, the gentleman from Wayne lifts his tail, cuts him from his marble bow, throw out his enormous wings and soar to the clouds, whence he will drive his thunderbolt and lightning bolts, and then, catching a ribbon from the rainbow, will kindly descend to Mother Earth and assist the unfortunates in caring for the dead and dying.

The question of license or no license was submitted to the people of thirty-seven counties gave majorities footing up 34,771 against license, while twenty-seven counties gave majorities aggregating $8,821 in favor of license; thus showing a majority in the State of 22,650 in favor of licensing the sale of liquor. But two cities—Altoona and Williamsport—voted against license, while fifteen voted in favor of licensing the sale.

Death of the Oldest Soldier in the Service. The death of a remarkable soldier of the United States army has taken place very recently at Fort Washington, Pa. One of the Oldest Soldiers, Sergeant Cameron, has been in the service sixty-seven years, and for forty years has stationed at Fort Washington, and in all that time it is said he has never failed of lighting the lamp in the light-house once, so remarkable has been his unflinching strength and health. He was in command of the fort at the time of the breaking out of the late war, and was the only one left there. He has a very interesting eventful history dating back to a period prior to the time when General Winfield Scott was in the army, and many has been the weary evenings he has spent in the room of a small boy, patient they will blister and decompose very rapidly, but will prevent the spread of the disease. Their application has also proved effective in the case of snake bites.

Short Horns. A large and successful sale of short horn cattle took place near Waukegan, Illinois, on the 10th inst. The herd consisted of 56 head and sold for an aggregate of over $15,000—the cows averaging $610.50 and the bulls $350 each.
